

Humorous Introduction for Topher Morrison

When our organizational committee met to decide who our keynote speaker would be, we all agreed on three things: They had to be well respected, have a proven track record for producing positive results, and speak from a place of authority. We began our search and realized that those kind of people were really expensive, so we settled for someone who is mildly funny, has no criminal convictions, and is able to speak without excessive drooling. Our search ended when we found Topher Morrison; he met 2 out of those 3 criteria.

Topher is here today to share with us how we can increase job stability, benefit from the current economic climate, and according to Topher, he says he'll even show us how to make it look like we are working when we are just playing solitaire on our PCs.

Ladies & Gentleman, please help me welcome to the stage the bad boy of motivational speakers, the man who puts the "eek" in motivational speaker, the self-help guru for people who are tired of self-help gurus...
Dr. Topher Morrison!
